

Bring the Noise!

Bring the Noise is a BBC web page that lets you play around with some songs. You can listen to different parts of a song, find the beat using your body or an instrument and add your own sounds through the computer.

Here are some musical activities that you could try with each song:

Anything

What instruments do you think are playing in the song? It sounds like lots but there's only 1 - the voice!

How many different instruments do you know? Can you try and make their noise with your mouth? Try to play the tune of a simple song that you know (like Twinkle Twinkle) using the sound of another instrument.

Far

Try to learn the chorus of the song. When you think you know it, take away the main singer and try singing it with the backing track (all the other instruments).

If we bring our hearts together then we can make the world much better
We will learn, together we'll go far

Colours of the pretty rainbow
Red, gold, green and even indigo
We will learn, together we'll go far

Spooky

What different sounds might you find in a haunted house? A creaking door, a witch's cackle, some fluttering bats? Try to make some of these sounds with your voice and body to create a spooky soundscape.

Pick your favourite sound. If you could draw it, what would it look like?

You could draw your own haunted house with all the things that make a noise. Use different types of lines (sharp, smooth, dotty, swirly) to show the noises that they make.
